In traditional development economies , development meant growth of per capita real income. Later on , a wider definition of development came to be assigned that focused on distributional activities. Economic development came to be redefined in terms of reduction or elimination of poverty and inequality. In India, there is much disparity among people in terms of income , occupation , education , health and nutrition . without improving this disparity the balanced development of the country is hypothetical. The goal of balanced development can be achieved only through making our people empowered by all means. Human development leads to human empowerment of India. The components of human development are the subject matter of brainstorm.

In view of this Department of Sociology, Mahatma Gandhi Kashi Vidyapith, Varanasi decided to organize a workshop under center of excellence on ‘ Effective and Balanced Human Development : An Overview’ from 22nd to 31st August 2109.
